Winter Snows, 57" × 57" The block is an old one, called Flowering Snowball. I designed and quilted it. "It ended up so different from what I initially envisioned when I started the quilt. Like it had a mind of its own."

One million Y Seams Too Many, 60" × 67", the pattern is a very old one named Jack's Chain . I started it when we finished mask making last summer with a goal of finishing it by the time vaccines were available.

Wedding Ring in Reds and White, 51" x 51", I love Virginia Finlay Wolfe's work and wanted to try her style of double wedding ring. This was going to be my challenge quilt for 2020 with words on the back relating to the pattern on the front. Unfortunately I found that this did not meet the guidelines of the challenge.

A decorative paper with a white and red diagonal split and a scalloped edge, resting on a wooden surface. The paper is divided diagonally from the top-left to the bottom-right. The upper-left portion is white, and the lower-right portion is a vibrant red. Both sections have a textured, slightly crinkled appearance. The paper is placed on a light-colored wooden surface with a visible grain. On the left edge, there are two small, circular, greyish-blue decorative elements. A semi-transparent grey banner is overlaid at the bottom left, containing the name 'Pam Ehrhardt' in a black, sans-serif font.

Love of Liberty, 46" × 46", I saw this arrangement of orange peel blocks on Pinterest and made it with Liberty fabrics.
(I tried to find it again to give the creator credit but couldn't find it.)

These 4 different blocks were made from our guilds MBOM. In order to make it bigger, I added more blocks playing with color combinations to see how they changed the look of the star. Overall quilting was done by Sarah Yoder Parker.
